- Women's Human Rights-New Solutions Association (Kadının İnsan Hakları–Yeni Çözümler Derneği), states that, according to the results of Being a Women in Pandemic report, 73% of all women experience economic distress due to the pandemic.
- According to the research conducted by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in Turkey, 50% of all women have experienced job loss by being laid off or given unpaid leave. This ratio is 42,6% for men.
- According to the report published by UN Women and UNDP, 47 million women and girls will be pushed over to the deep poverty line in 2021.
- According to the " Deep Poverty and Access to Rights in times of Pandemic Research":
 - In 66% of the households interviewed, women do not work.
 - 55% of non-working adults in the households cannot work due to childcare responsibilities.
 - Some of the women do not feel safe in the regions they live due to sexual assault risk.
 - 82% of women cannot reach sanitary pads in the pandemic.
 - In 17% of the households interviewed, women are the only adult.
- Women who struggle with deep poverty and we are in solidarity with face hardships in access to justice and protection when they experience gender violence. This situation makes women face multi-dimensional inequalities by layering the gender and poverty-based inequalities.
